Kaye enjoyed planting flowers, a good game of cards, word puzzles, collecting spoons, knitting and baking. She was generous and kind. Many neighbours and friends were treated to her pies and biscuits, including all the past and present parish priests who were also kept warm with her handmade mittens, socks, caps and sweaters. Along with a generous nature, Kaye was blessed with a grateful spirit, always appreciative of any act of kindness shown to her. She was happiest when her children and grandchildren were gathered in her kitchen to share a home cooked meal together.
